Got it. No, I'll be helping out with Gold King Mine. Glad we clarified that.

Yes. Water quality issues normally fall under my purview, but I'm headed south next week to cover a water dispute in Washington County and won't be able to continue to follow the Gold King Mine release while I'm there.

Oh. Well, I put in an inquiry for that, but I thought we were talking about another question I brought up this morning: a notice placed by the EPA in the Federal Register requesting mercury concentration data from the Great Salt Lake. I had asked what the EPA needed that information for.

I'd like the projections as well, if I can get them, but I've already passed that assignment on to another reporter.

Understood. Again, you want to know if we have projections for how long it will take for the contaminants to settle and things back to normal in Utah, right?

I believe it. I had hoped for an ETA since I will be on the road next week, and may have to pass the story on to another reporter.

Can't promise an ETA, sadly. We'll get there, but we have lots of queries as you can imagine.

Great! Thank you for the clarification. Do you know when we might be able to get a response?

Hi Robert,

This is regarding the call for data from the Great Salt Lake, correct?

Many thanks in advance,

Emma

Hullo Emma,

A quick word to let you know we've received and are working on your query.

Thanks for reaching out.

Best, R.
